

Many Agencies Of Price Control Operating: Play Big Part In Economic Life

By GRANT DENTER

Edmonton Bulletin Ottawa Bureau

OTTAWA, March 24.—Although the public may not be aware of it, many agencies of price control are now in operation. These agencies are not co-ordinated. They are not directed by a single government. Some of them are working at cross purposes with others. But, collectively, they are playing a far larger part in the economic life of the country than is generally known.

SABOTAGE MAY HAVE WRECKED BOMBER PLANE

N.Y. Paper Hears Grass, Sand Found In Oil Of Banting Plane

NEW YORK, March 24.—(CP)—The New York Herald Tribune says in a newspaper story Sunday that a report is current in aviation circles, "credited by reliable informants as authentic," that sabotage caused the crash of a Lockheed bomber plane in which Sir Frederick Banting and two other persons were killed Feb. 13 in Newfoundland.

The method by which the American-built bomber was brought down is said to have been the introduction of a small amount of sand and grass in the oil supply of each engine, says the newspaper.

"One of these, according to the story, would have been the pilot, who in his lubricating system. The other two were killed when the plane crashed on landing in the sea."

"In the resultant 'dead-end' landing, which was attempted on a frozen lake, all aboard the plane were killed, except the pilot, Joseph C. Mackay of Kansas City."

British and Canadian investigators after examining the engine of the wrecked bomber and finding sand and grass in the oil tanks, decided to trace the origin by a check-up at all the airports where the plane stopped to refuel en route to Newfoundland from the Lockheed factory at Burbank, Calif.

The results of their investigation, though many have not been disclosed, show that the plane was being operated in Canadian-American flying circles—without the usual much evidence in responsible quarters here—that one man who might sabotage the plane was caught and sent to Canada and another was turned over to the British from the United States and dealt a similar fate."

Killed with Sir Frederick, co-commander of the mission, were William Banting and William St. Laurent, radio operator.

SYDNEY GIVES BIG FAREWELL TO U.S. FLEET

SYDNEY, March 24.—(CP)—With the salute of thousands of Australians, seven United States warships, under Rear Admiral John H. Newton, sailed Sunday for Brisbane to rejoin the Australian fleet which left last Thursday.

It was estimated 50,000 people jammed the harbor and every headland to wave farewell to the American officers and men.

Air force planes flew overhead in salute, while every type of craft followed the ships down the harbor.

Rear Admiral Newton in an interview yesterday expressed appreciation for the welcome which he received. He also paid tribute to the war effort of the Australians.

The commander said that Australia, which he described as a young, strong nation, apparently had suffered no weakening through its participation in the war. He said he found morale high.

POLITICS NOW OUT OF PLACE WILKIE SAYS

NEW YORK, March 24.—(AP)—Wendell L. Wilkie said Sunday night he was "not the slightest interested in any of the political candidates of anyone for the year 1942 or 1943."

He made the statement when asked to comment on the assertion of an unidentified Republican national committee member in Washington that the Republican 1940 Presidential candidate was "not interested" in running for President in 1944.

The committee member speculated that Wilkie might be Governor Harold E. Stassen of Minnesota for the 1944 election.

"Civilization is facing one of its crucial moments," Wilkie said. "Talk of party politics and candidates is completely out of place in either case."

"I am interested at this time, aside from necessary devotion to personal affairs, in the elimination of isolationist sentiment in the United States, in the building of an adequate defense system and its competent administration and finally in our national financial policies, all in order that America may help save liberty for herself and the world."

It was not the slightest interest at this time in the candidacy of anyone for any year in 1942 or 1944. Such talk is pure nonsense."

The Wartime Prices and Trade Board at Ottawa is easily the most important of these agencies and its purpose, consistently pursued since the outbreak of war, has been to keep down the cost of living, to prevent profiteering.

When the Exchange tax of 10 per cent on imports of all non-Kingpin goods was imposed in June, 1940, parliament instructed the board to "take this measure and its purpose, consistently pursued since the outbreak of war, has been to keep down the cost of living, to prevent profiteering."

December further restrictions were placed on imports, as a means of saving United States dollars and to increase the price of sugar—like a lb. in October and 15c in May, 1940. This is a true story.

There was, as well, a word shortage in the early months of the war but by temporary price fixing and arranging for adequate supplies the board avoided confusion.

A shortage of codfish oil developed when Norway was seized by the Nazis and here the board's policy to rise to the occasion, to encourage the fisherman. A codfish oil industry has been founded in this country since May, 1940, and it is regarded as permanent.

The upward tendency in bread prices, following the enactment of the 10c per bushel processing tax in July, was halted by the board. Because of the war, acute shortages of food have been forbidden. Here a plan has been inserted: Bread from the level of January 2, 1940. The reason for this standard order have been stated by an official of the board as follows:

At The Same Old Stand—Historic St. Paul's

Standing like a veteran campaigner on a scarred battlefield is the historic St. Paul's cathedral. All around are ruins from buildings that have been bombed and blown from the air. The cathedral, however, is a monument of British courage in the crisis. With its help in air raids London is still standing, starting to rebuild and the London as Londoners have always known it is starting to emerge again.

A United Front
The sub-committee of the Senate at Washington gave unanimous support to the $7,000,000 appropriation to implement the lend-lease policy, and took little time to do it. On the committee were three members who had voted against the lend-lease bill, including Senator Nye. These joined their colleagues in support of the money vote on the ground that since the policy has been adopted the means to make it effective should be provided.

The same reason, it may be conjectured, the appropriation is likely to be approved by the Senate, quickly, and with general support from those who fought the adoption of the lend-lease bill. To this point the country is now committed. It is no longer an administration plan or a party plan, but represents the declared purpose of the United States. The only course should have been taken can therefore with complete consistency assist in the execution involved. The country is in fact doing anything else without defying public opinion as expressed by Congress, and trying to prevent the United States doing what the world has been led to expect.

One War Or Another

Yugoslavia seems fairly likely to get into war, "hot" war or "cold" on its own. The deal with Berlin has thrown the country into turmoil, which may end in internal strife if it does not lead to the complete defeat of the Government and open defiance of the Axis.

The Yugoslavians owe nothing to Germany or Italy; they fought the former in the first world war and lost. They have since then never been at war with Germany. Their country was born of their own courage and resolution, and its boundaries were drawn by the council table at Versailles. Hitler repudiated the Versailles settlement he repudiated it in total, including the recognition of the new boundaries. He repudiated it in total, including the recognition of the new boundaries. He repudiated it in total, including the recognition of the new boundaries.

The population of the country is about 15,000,000, one-third Serbs. There have never been any frontier frictions between the Serbs and the Croats and Slovenes elements. The latter are credited with pro-Axis leanings, rightly or wrongly, and it is upon them that the majority rests for the future of Yugoslavia.

Berlin's demands. The cleavage therefore created fosters racial lines, with the fiercely independent Serbs only too ready to "go it alone" and the nationalistic in order to help the Fuehrer launch his onslaught upon the Greeks.

The Serb temperament, being what it is, is an attempt to suppress their opposition is very liable to touch off an explosion and precipitate civil war.

Just Calling Around

Nothing more than friendliness is necessarily implied in the visit of one squadron of the United States warships to Japan, and of another squadron to Australia. Both countries have been visited by naval units of the United States in years past, and the Pacific area was usually without internal disturbances. They are hospitable countries, and they make natural that that cruises of the United States Navy should be made courtesy calls when they happen to be in that part of the great ocean. Reports show that the traditional hospitality was well maintained and visitors and hosts enjoyed the occasion.

As to why the warships happened to be in the waters—no information has been given yet, and any speculation as to why they are interested in the point are left to the unfettered exercise of their imaginations. The only consideration is that the simultaneous calls at ports in Dominica sixteen hundred miles apart would seem to indicate that a considerable part of the United States fleet in the Pacific is now somewhere thereabout, for reasons which curious observers will also have to ask themselves.

And should the fleet, or any part of it, be fit to pay a call at Singapore, steps will be of course be taken to see that the ships get through safely through the straits. The ships are given a reception available to the event. Which again, interested onlookers would be entitled to explain in any way that suited their fancy—or their apprehensions.

These Also "Will Get It"
News here, but even in British and Greece, can the promise of a much better life for so many of the people in Europe is being made as well as in the United States. The President's speech may seem to be a mere utterance. For the people of these occupied countries Mr. Roosevelt said a message of hope and inspiration. He said that when the Axis power disintegrates and they see an opportunity to strike a blow to freedom, they should be ready to do so. He said that they should be ready to do so. He said that they should be ready to do so.

The Saturday Night Review

The test of a government delivered over radio station CFRN at 8 p.m. Saturday, March 22. By The Bulletin's associate editor, Harold L. Weir

While several puzzling uncertainties still prevail in the German situation, the picture of the Third Reich is becoming more clear. There is something of a paradox in the fact that although Hitler has managed to annex Rumania and Bulgaria, two powerful Balkan countries, his prestige throughout the whole of the East is actually lower than when he commenced his inexpressible campaign of attrition in these regions.

This loss of prestige, of course, is due to the appearance of his diplomatic blunders. In the first place, the value of Rumanian and Bulgarian support is questionable.

But as an aid with which to open the door to civil war. Disturbances are continuing. Only the strictest kind of military repression maintains the semblance of civil peace. Should Germany be involved in actual hostilities, the pot of public resentment might very easily boil over.

Not is Bulgaria a much better case. She has, of course, the tradition of German alliance.

But along with that tradition of German alliance the unfortunates knowledge that this tradition led her to back a loser in World War No. 1.

It is therefore pretty plain that Adolf Hitler's policy in Bulgaria, not in the capacity of house-guest, but in the capacity of burglar.

All this is very clear to the Yugoslavians and to the Turks. It is one of the things that give courage to the Yugoslavians to resist German pressure to join the Axis.

It is therefore pretty plain that Adolf Hitler's policy in Bulgaria, not in the capacity of house-guest, but in the capacity of burglar.

Volunteer Workers Open Canadian War Services Campaign For $120,000

Throughout Northern Alberta, Monday, hundreds of volunteer workers started the campaign to raise $120,000 for the Canadian War Services Fund. This is the Northern Alberta quota of the $240,000 allocated to this province by the central organization committee.

An appeal is made by Paul T. Farrell, H.A.K.K. president, at the Alberta Association of Municipal Districts, for support to this fund. Mr. Farrell is making this appeal to residents throughout the province.

How Not To Pay A Girl's Way

What boorish manners! Dorking her out before the girls. Post-church, my eighty-eight cents, that's for my ticket and beer. Then, let's see. And he's the man who wanted to marry a "really fine" girl. How dare I! Well, like a boy who doesn't even know that double-date payments are settled when girls arrive.

How Not To Pay A Girl's Way

After all, how can a new girl make an exception by your manner? If you drop your girl before her, you'll drop her for her or rather to help her out of a car, she's naturally ashamed of you.

How Not To Pay A Girl's Way

Men of the world—the girl prefers for dates—never make such men. They're not worth a cent, either the room, in introducing another man, they mention her name first.

How Not To Pay A Girl's Way

And the type of girl these men prefer to take out. In a restaurant, the don't have to wonder, when she should thank the waiter. Nor at a dance, at she flustered if a man cuts in.

How Not To Pay A Girl's Way

She knows—and you could, too—the simple rules of good manners. If you please. Our 25-page booklet gives behavior for men, women, and children, dancing, movies, games, when dating, entertaining, visiting. Dances put in position.

WAIT FOR ME

By KATHERINE MACY

CHAPTER THIRTY-THREE

PETER was in the Holmstrom library before the fire. His handkerchief slipped up on a stool. His hair was brushed as neatly as his face, and he looked like a chastened schoolboy as Jan and his father entered the room. He smiled his cigarette at the fire and held out his hands to her.

"My heroism," he said, "Gosh, it makes me feel silly to think I had to be rescued by a slip of a thing like this. I've been thinking in pieces a number of times, but never by a girl before."

His father said soberly, "We can't thank you enough, Jan. You realize that it had been for you Peter would be with us now."

Peter shrugged and said, "Oh, the other hand, wouldn't have been where I was if Jan hadn't been with me? You can't elope by yourself, you know."

STERN VOICE

"Well, discuss that later." His father's voice was stern. "And until you can be trusted to manage your own affairs properly, we will see that you have proper supervision of your enterprises. Three airplane accidents in the space of a few months is nothing to laugh at."

Peter subsided so meekly that Jan looked at him in astonishment. He certainly was not like him to quail under his father's words. He always had a quip or retort, offhand for Robert's remarks. What could have happened?

"I'll call Fania and Mr. Nourse and we will get down to business," said Robert, ringing the buzzer on the wall.

"You may all here, Jan."

Seating herself on the chair opposite Peter, as Robert directed, the girl looked from one man to the other in the silence that followed.

HEART BEATS FAST

There was something ceremonial and planned about their arrival. Her heart began to beat faster as she wondered what was coming.

Fania came in and looked her quickly with a few words of welcome, then introduced her to Mr. Nourse, a well-dressed man who carried a sheaf of papers which he drew from a briefcase. "Roberta lawyer, from New York," he explained.

When they were all seated, Mr. Nourse with his papers spread before him on the table, Robert Van Vliet began. "I asked you to come here today, Jan, so that we may all clear up a few matters which have been confusing us in the past few months. I must begin by saying that I blame absolutely none of it on you."

"You have been thoroughly loyal and discreet. What blame there is must go to my son, though he is not entirely guilty. He has been victimized through his own ignorance and thoughtlessness. I hope he has learned his lesson."

This formal speech was a meaningless jargon to Jan. Peter bent his head and looked up at her from under his father's old quizzical smile trembling on his lips. Then he was cross again as his father went on.

"The beginning was, of course, this night of October 12, when

Animal Crackers

"I know that I know that she had been to various columns after the story of our wedding appeared in the newspapers. I supposed that was why Peter wanted to leave New York so quickly that night, as he would not touch him until after we were married again."

"And you were willing to risk firing down in Hollywood, knowing all the time I can't understand it," said Robert reproachfully.

Jan looked down at her hands and then back at him thoughtfully. "Neither can I, Mr. Van Vliet, when you put it that way. Just my idea of money. I guess it seemed to me, during those months of waiting, that I owed it to you and to Peter to do my best for the Van Vliet. Peter seemed to think I needed me, and I didn't know him around."

"In fact, it seemed to me that I was in love with him. It distressed me to see that he was not living up

Curious World

By William Ferguson

"I am planning a very simple wedding and wish you would tell me how many things I should have. I should have. Should I have a flower girl or two? I am living in a small apartment and I am undecided whether to have the reception at home or in the church parlor. Thank you for your letter."

MISS B. H. H.

Answer—In such circumstances as you describe, my idea of a simple wedding would be for your family and the groom's family and possibly a few mutual friends to attend the ceremony at the church and the reception afterwards. At the wedding the bride usually has only one attendant and the groom a best man.

I certainly would not have a flower girl or two, if I wanted to see a simple wedding in real earnestness. You may wear only a small reception then I would have a small enough for my apartment. But even if you have the reception at the church parlor you must still keep as simple as possible.
